Students Enjoy Tour Of Edmonton

Thursday, June 15, saw the Education Point school class and teacher off on the train for their second Industrial Tour of Edmonton. For some pupils it was their first visit to a city.

We started out Friday morning by attending the Calgary Ginger Ale plant and watching the process by which our well loved 'pop' is made. We were treated to a bottle each before leaving.

On our tour through Swift's Packing Plant, we saw the live animals enter, be butchered and all the steps in their producing bacon, hams, sausage, etc., and different meat cuts. We watched how the butter and lard were wrapped and made ready for shipping. Some of the gruesome sights witnessed here were likely the reason for so many tomato sandwiches for lunch. Meat didn't seem as tasty just then.

After eating lunch we visited the Edmonton City Bakery. We saw the sponge doughs rising, the steam room and also the large ovens. We were able to see all the machines that eliminate human handling. Before we left we were treated to donuts.

To finish the day we all relaxed in the comfortable seats of the Rialto Theatre.

On Saturday morning some of the pupils visited the air port. First we toured the Canadian Pacific Airlines hangar, then the Trans-Canada Airlines Hangar. In both of these we went through planes but the one we enjoyed most was a large TCA passenger plane. We were surprised to find them so roomy and comfortable. Our guide briefly explained some of the pilot's controls. None of us realized how complicated these instruments were. Then we witnessed a flight for Yellowknife taking off. While we were at the air port the helicopter made several short flights.

After lunch on Saturday (we were all eating meat again by now) we went to Borden Park. First of all we went swimming. Concessions, lockers and showers were all new to us. When we came out we had a good old hot dog and bought some pop corn, then went to see the animals. We enjoyed seeing the ostrich and peacock most.

On Sunday we met to go to St. Albert. Here we saw the museum, the large Church, the tombs of Father Lacombe and Bishop Grandin, the shrine, cemetery and the large silver church bells. Then we went to Cooking Lake for our supper and another swim.

Monday morning dawned another warm day and saw us homeward bound. All the way home we relived our experiences but bearing Irma I think we were all feeling glad to be home again.

Lord Wavell

NEWS OF THE RECENT DEATH of Field Marshal Lord Wavell in England brought back to the minds of many people in this country memories of his gallant service during the last war and of his fine qualities of statesmanship. He rose from a junior officer in the Black Watch regiment to the rank of Field Marshal and he also achieved the honor of being Viceroy of India at a critical time in that country's history. At all times he displayed modesty although he was an outstanding soldier and leader in public life in the Commonwealth. Mr. Churchill who was responsible for many of the undertakings assigned to Field Marshal Wavell described him as a "master of war".

Campaign In North Africa

Perhaps the most colorful event in Lord Wavell's career, and the one for which he is best remembered here, was the campaign in North Africa in the winter of 1940-41. At that time Britain and the Dominions were alone in their stand against Germany and Italy, and Britain was suffering relentless air attacks. The brilliant victory of Lord Wavell's army over the Italians in North Africa showed that the enemy could be turned back, and helped enormously to bolster the morale of the rest of the services and of the civilians at home. The campaign which was carried out while Lord Wavell's army was small and poorly equipped, was looked upon as one of the turning points in the war.

Many Events Now Forgotten

Later he was to show further his qualities for leadership and endurance in organizing campaigns in Ethiopia, Eritrea and the Middle East, and in attempting to bring Allied help to Greece. Many of the details of events of those years are now forgotten, but they will be recalled in connection with the names of the great men who took part in them. Lord Wavell will long be remembered for his brilliant campaign in North Africa at a time when there was great need for some promise of success against the enemy. He will also be remembered as a thoughtful leader who served the Commonwealth well both as a soldier and as a statesman and who had great interest in its welfare and faith in its future. Canada joined with the United Kingdom and other nations in paying tribute to his memory.

Tender, Aching Perspiring Feet

In just one minute after an application of Foot-Less you'll get the surprise of your life. Your tired, tender, aching, burning feet will literally jump for joy. No time to waste, too, apply a few drops of the oil over the surface of the foot and morning or when you get up. Just a little and rub it in. It's simply wonderful. The way it gets on all foot misery, while for feet that wear with an offensive odor, there's nothing better in the world. It's a splendid formula—this combination of essential oil and vasoline and other substances so good that thousands of bottles are sold annually to help women to come and callous, dragging everywhere.

Vancouver Youth Takes Over Band

LONDON.—Walter Gorel, 19-year-old member of the Kitchikan Boys' Band of Vancouver, which arrived here recently exchanged his trombone for a baton when the band gave its first concert at Bournemouth.

For Bournemouth—on the south coast—is in the throes of musicians' strikes and the conductor, Arthur Delamont, feels that, as a member of the International Musicians' Federation, trade union solidarity demands that he support the stoppage.

But the boys are amateurs—they pay part of their expenses for the trip, regarded as educational—and so are not affected by the strike.

The 39 boys in the band will tour Britain and the Netherlands until September. They are travelling as the Vancouver Boys' Band—Delamont doesn't want the "Kitchikan" label to make anyone think his boys are Indians.

SOME DRIVERS DO CLUTTER UP CAR WINDOWS

The impression seems to prevail among some motorists, says the Saint John Telegraph-Journal, that the front window is put in by the car makers so there will be a place to pile up with travel folders, lunch boxes, fishing tackle and data, leaving enough room for the kids to see through and make faces at oncoming motorists.

"Frontier Towns" Formed

Oil Search Swings Into High Gear In Vast North

PEACE RIVER, Alta.—A hinterland oil search has swung into high gear by plane, truck, boat, barge and pioneer-style pack train. The hunt was on for more oil reserves in the vast area of northwestern Alberta, parts of northeastern British Columbia, and into the southern fringes of the Northwest Territories.

Communities like this one—placed farming centre where wheat is the main economic crop, turned suddenly into "frontier towns".

Sixsmith, High Prairie, McLennan, Fairview, Grimshaw, Fort Assiniboine, Thorhill, Keg River, Meekie River, Eagles Horn, Wainman, Manning, Smith, Alta.; Dawson Creek and Fort St. John, B.C., were jumping-off points for a host of geophysical parties searching for indications of oil in an uncharted, untouched territory.

Oil companies set up headquarters in trailers, horses were in short supply as hundreds of pack trains were organized for trips deep into the hinterland.

Oil was found some months ago at Normandale, in the Peace River country, followed by two dry holes and a recent gas strike in the same area.

Pipeline Needed
However, there was no hurry to drill, officials said, because of lack of markets and even more important, lack of facilities to move possible production to market outlets. Oilmen said pipelines would one day be the answer.

High on the list of developments was a plan of four companies to launch the first large-scale airborne magnetometer survey of the area.

Canadian Aero Service, limited, contracted to do the job for Imperial Oil, Sococo Vacuum Exploration, Stanolind Oil and Gas and Canadian Gulf Oil. They decided to pool their resources for the expensive undertaking.

The aerial method was adopted because miles-upon-miles of dense bush and acres of muskeg would make ground seismic work slower and even more costly.

Meanwhile, Imperial established headquarters in two trailers here for

B.C. Vacationist Offers To Pay Fine Incurred In 1912

LAUNCESTOWN, Cornwall, England.—Claude Cleave, on vacation from Chilliwack, B.C., walked into the police station here and announced he had come to pay his fine.

The officer on duty blinked. No Canadians had been in trouble in the district lately.

Then Cleave explained he incurred the fine in 1912. He was summoned 38 years ago for driving a team of horses and a loaded wagon down a steep hill in the town without a drag on the wheels to act as a brake.

He left for Canada before his case came up, and has lived there since.

Court records showed a summons was issued, but was withdrawn when it was found Cleave had left the country.

All Join Hands

By W. R. MERRYWEATHER

Honor your partners, corners address, Join your hands and circle to the left. All the way round and break and swing With your partners all.

You aren't likely to see a finer project in farm young peoples' club work than the recent square dance competition sponsored by the Carlyle, (Sask.), Beef Calf Club. Every member of the club worked hard on the project; neighboring clubs co-operated by bringing well trained dancing teams to Carlyle, and despite a rough spring blizzard an audience of 500 turned out to applaud the competition to the end. It was a big success no matter how you look at it.

Alameda Beef Calf Club captured first prize for the dancing competition by a 2 point margin over the Arcola and Carlyle Beef Club teams who tied for second place. The teams were well matched and forced the judges to consider many minor points in making their decisions.

The zest put into these competitions proved that square dancing is lots of fun for today's young people—just as much fun as it was for Grandma and Grandpa when they bundled Mom and Pop into the democrat or the sleigh out of town to a hoe-down in the school house or at the neighbor's place.

Entering a team in one of these square dance competitions is work and fun. These teams had practiced beforehand. Most clubs brought their own musicians and had trained one of their members to "call off" their squares. And if you think "calling" is easy you should have seen Judge George Bell's score sheet! He is an old hand at "calling off" so he paid special attention to the callers and doctored points for faults like being out of tune or rhythm, for callers not keeping their calls ahead of the movement of the trained dance teams, for lack of volume and so on. One of the best of the junior callers was 14-year-old Iola Murray with the all-girl team entered by the Hi-Wa-Ken Homestead Club from Kennedy.

The teams came in costumes too! Girls wore Dutch bonnets, houses and long skirts, evening dresses, or shirts and jeans. The boys had variety too ranging from whooping, stomping buckaroos with ten gallon hats, bandanas, jeans and boots to relatively civilized red shirts and jeans, or white shirts, ties and grey trousers. Whitewood Homestead Club turned out with the boys in tails and the girls in lovely long dresses, and danced a minuet to lend variety and charm to the program.

Hundreds of club members will be interested in how this competition developed. They were imported from Bill Sikkink how, and he promptly said "Ask the kids—they did it." To me this statement indicated a fine club and a great club leader. We asked the kids.

No one was too sure where the idea of holding a square dance competition came from. It might have come from the farm press or radio reports on a similar rally held at Wilkie, Sask., last year, or it might have been an original idea. The main point was that the Carlyle Beef Calf Club had decided to sponsor the competition and had invited four neighboring clubs to compete. The other clubs accepted and the wheels began to turn.

At first the event was planned for April but bad weather forced postponement to May 6th. A spring blizzard blew up on May 6th but the show had to go—it was getting close to seeding time. The members were rather worried early that evening in case their guests wouldn't be able to get to Carlyle. But seven guest teams arrived from Arcola, Alameda, Kennedy and Whitewood calf clubs, Kennedy and Whitewood homestead clubs and Waucheco grain club. The crowd filled the hall to capacity. The box office did a big business and financial success was certain by 10 o'clock.

Public dancing composed the first hour of the program, then the centre of the floor was roped off. The crowd was invited to square dance outside the ropes but never a square was formed. They watched and applauded every competing team. After all teams had performed two sets lunch was served. Ag. Rep. Morley Crowe of Weyburn, who has served farmers in the Carlyle to Weyburn area for many years, was invited to present the prizes. The public dancing continued till early morning in keeping with western dance traditions. In the same tradition we'll end this story with a jaunty last verse of the square dance call:

It's main left on the corners all, Right hand to partner and grand change, Honor your own and pass her by, Swing-o-swing with your partners all, And pronounce, you know where and I don't care.

THE TILLERS

—By Les Carroll

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE ICICLE

By LEONARD BUTTS

AT twenty-nine, Barclay Adams, accountant and tax expert, had gained some friends and lost some by his frankness. And sometimes, it amused him to be frank with girls even to the degree of exaggeration, especially as to his preference for bachelorhood. That is, until he met Linda Parsons, who was frank, too, and cold.

Her face reminded Barclay of Sue Jennings, a girl he'd liked once, almost enough to marry. But he'd dabbled, so she had married another.

Now, this was Barclay's second day of his vacation. It was also his second attempt to gain some sign of encouragement from "the icicle." He'd tried to get acquainted the day before, but apparently he hadn't been frank enough. Or maybe it was because he'd had his clothes on and she'd been suitably bare. Anyway, she'd ignored his six feet of virility.

"Ah, there you are," he greeted, pulling himself from the water a few feet from where Linda sat.

"Good morning," she said with apathy.

"Been in yet?" he asked.

"No," she said, scooping up a hand full of sand.

He sank down and grinned. It was the same persuasive grin forming the same dimple in his right cheek. But she seemed more concerned with the mound of sand that her elegant hands were forming.

At least she was affording him a good look. She was slender, and taller than the average, with curves in the right places. Barclay placed her age at about twenty-five.

"Having a good time?" he ventured.

"What do you think?" she asked, without lifting her eyes.

"You could have a better time."

"So could you," she said, lifting her neatly arched brows. "Why don't you join that group on the float?"

"Not interested, thanks."

A little wrinkle appeared between her brows as she looked about.

"There's a nice-looking girl over yonder. Sitting alone, maybe waiting for somebody like you."

Barclay chuckled. "I saw her first. No originality. She's just like thousands of others. Line them all up, shut your eyes and pick one."

She shook her head and turned her attention to her mound of sand.

"All right, Miss Icicle," he said, rising. "Think I'll get wet again."

"Good," she said without looking up.

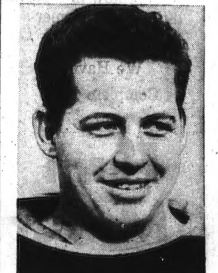

With head erect and lips tight, he strode toward the springboard, wondering why he'd noticed her in the first place.

Yet, on the board, his eyes sought Linda, and found her slipping into the water. He dived, came up and plunged in her direction, cutting the water with smooth strokes.

From him but swimming toward the hotel. And she swam like a veteran. Barclay quickened his strokes. He started to yell but changed his mind.

There was a woman who was used to water. Another surprise. And now she was leaving him behind. Still another surprise.

Moves West

Frank Morris, last season's captain of the Toronto Argonaut football team, will play for the Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Football 1950 schedule. He is the fourth Argonaut to move west since last year's series.

Alberta Miner Clawed By Angry Bear

COAL VALLEY, Alta.—Peter Kukulka, coal miner, is recovering from an experience which disrupted a quiet fishing trip recently. He had his feet chewed by an enraged mother bear.

Kukulka encountered the bear in woods near here, 140 miles southwest of Edmonton. He scrambled up a tree and the bear with two cubs trailing went after him.

The miner had his shoes torn from his feet by the slashing claws and teeth of the bear and his faithful dog received a beating. Kukulka attempted to drive it off by stabbing at the animal's head with a small hunting knife.

When the bear finally gave up attempts to reach the miner, Kukulka hobbled to within sight of a mining camp. Employees went to his aid when he was seen to drop to the ground.

May Extend Vote Franchise To Indians

OTTAWA.—The government proposes to extend the federal voting franchise to Indians living on reservations who are willing to give up their income tax exemption.

Walter Harris, minister of citizenship and immigration, gave notice he will move a motion to this effect before the Commons election committee.

At present, Indian war veterans and their wives may vote, regardless of whether they live on reservations. Others may vote if they do not live on reserves.

Indians living on reservations now are taxed on income earned off the reserve. The waiver would apply only to the additional income they earn on the reserve.

WAR GRAVES MAY CARRY UNIT NAMES

OTTAWA.—Defence Minister Clarkson disclosed in the Commons that unit names may be engraved into the headstones over the graves of Canada's war dead across the sea.

Pending a final decision, he has stopped erection of headstones in overseas military cemeteries and has officials looking into the possibility of inscribing the names of the regiments in which the fallen men served.

If it is decided to do this, unit names will go on new headstones being erected and inscribed on those already in place.

Initiative is originality in motion.

Barclay Was Sure He Looked The Right Way

It was useless to strain himself more. He couldn't overtake her now anyway. There were no other bathers in that part of the lake, so it was easy to keep her cap spotted. She was changing her course. But Barclay was losing his power. His legs were getting heavy. Which convinced him that he'd become softer than he'd thought.

"Thank goodness, she was heading for the shore fifty yards away."

She was there when Barclay pulled himself out, panting and feigning interest in a rock at the water's edge, playing time until he could speak without effort.

"You did pretty well," she said. "But what have you gained?"

He waited until he sat down beside her. "Another chance to talk to you."

She bent her knees and wrapped her arms around them. For a moment, she just sat there, her blue eyes meeting his. Slowly, the tightness around her lips eased, and for the first time she revealed her teeth. White and even they were.

"Just why do you want to talk to me?"

"Because you're the only woman I've ever cared for enough to chase."

"And you know nothing in the world about me."

"I'm ready to listen."

"Well, you asked for it. I happen to be a widow, with two children, a boy five and a girl four."

"Divorced?" he managed.

"No," she said softly. "My husband died a year ago."

He picked up a stick and poked at the ground. Anything to regain control. He was a wizard at figures. But this one had him stumped. If she was now twenty-five, he'd done too well.

"You look young to have a child five."

"Thanks," she said. "I'm twenty-eight."

"Three years older than I guessed."

"Now you know," she said. "why you should have looked another way."

He was quick at figures. And he figured that if he'd married Sue Jennings at twenty-three, he'd probably been the father of at least two. But instead, he'd yielded to a rival, who was now the father of three.

"I still think—I looked the right way."

"I wonder," she said calmly. "He moved nearer. Then suddenly, as if in a dream, he put his arm around her shoulders and kissed her."

"Now is that nice?" she said, turning her head.

"Very," he said with emphasis. Then Barclay told her about himself, frankly and without reserve. He told her about his promising accounting profession. And modestly, she told him about the estate, the home and other property her husband had left her.

Until Barclay, an expert at figures, was sure he'd looked the right way. (Copyright Western Newspaper Syndicate)

Dickie's Good Deed!

WEYBURN, Sask.—Dickie Mitchell, four, a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mitchell thought he'd do his father a big favor the other day, but the final results of his "good deed for the day" will probably not be known for some time.

As the account goes, Dickie overheard his parents discussing the garden situation. His father apparently was complaining about the lack of good seed potatoes.

Later Dickie saw a neighbor planting potatoes.

Later still, Dickie, together with another youngster, dug up the potatoes planted by the neighbor, and re-planted them in his father's garden.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calumet—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile into your digestive tract every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just clog in the digestive tract. This gas builds up your stomach. You get bloated. You feel more, rank and the world looks ugly.

It takes three small, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up."

On a package today, reference is made to the fact that Carter's Little Liver Pills are at your drugstore.

Locals

Irene Lambert and Doris Owen of Irma and Agnes Stewart of Viking spent the remainder of their holidays at home after an enjoyable week together at Banff.

Congratulations to Mrs. M. Chase on her new Austin.

These wonderful June rains are just like the ones the old timers all remember in the early days. Looks like a bumper crop of radishes anyway.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Knudson and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Knudson left Irma on Sunday last for a motor trip which will include visits with relatives in Montana, Washington and New Westminster, B.C.

The work on the Insul Tex siding which is being placed on the United Church is pretty well completed. This will give a stone like appearance to the walls and will look very nice. The volunteer crew responsible for this fine job was composed of Messrs. J. Craig, I. Currie, L. Currie, H. W. Inglis, A. H. Locke, E. Tomlinson, Chas. Younker, H. Oldham and his helper "Bill", A. Cook, E. Fell and H. L. Black.

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Jones who have been holidaying on the West Coast and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McFarland whose vacation took them down east, all returned to Irma this week.

A new road has been opened up in Irma going west from the Catholic church. We believe this is an extension of what is known as 2nd Ave. In any case it will open up new territory for building and will be a great improvement in our already thriving village.

Miss Nancy Bereza of Overleigh was a week-end guest of Shirley Enger.

Recent visitors at Irma were Mr. and Mrs. L. Osback of Overleigh. They visited at the home of Mrs. A. Enger.

A group of local ladies met in the Irma United Church on Wed., June 21 and again on Tuesday, June 27. This group was composed of some of the champion quilters of the district and the result of their combined labors was three fine quilts all quilted and bound and read to be sent to the Winnipeg Flood Relief.

A donation to the Alberta Protestant Home for Children in memory of Baby Thurston; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Archibald.

We are very sorry to learn that Mr. Jack Carswell of Cranbrook has lost his life by drowning. Mrs. Bert Kennedy, sister of Mrs. Carswell has left Irma for Cranbrook. Mr. E. Sharkey Sr. is already with his daughter there.

Dr. G. M. Ascar will not be holding clinic at Irma during the month of July as he will be away on his holidays.
